NEW VERSION OF COOK'S DEATH

Samuel Charles, a Master Mariner, Tells What He Saw on Hawaii.

The Sydney Morning Herald of June 26 says:

Captain Samuel Charles, M.L.C., of Cliff Towers, Point Piper, is one of the few living persons who has conversed with one of the actual witnesses of the death of Captain Cook. Captain Charles, who is now nearly 90 years of age, had also the unique experience in his youth of having followed the route taken by the great navigator in the eighteenth century. At the request of his Excellency the Governor, Sir Harry Rawson, Captain Charles embodied his experiences in a letter, which has now been made available. The letter runs:

To His Excellency Admiral Sir Harry Holdsworth Rawson, K. C. B., Governor of New South Wales.

Sir: With due respect I now forward as promised a statement of what prompted me to visit and find particulars of Captain Cook's voyages and death. On reading Captain Cook's voyages when a boy it created a desire in me to see the places described by him, most of which I have seen since. First, in January, 1844, while on a run from Sydney to Kiama in a cutter of 12 tons, we were caught in a southerly buster and run into Botany Bay. Seeing a cottage on shore we landed; meeting the man in charge, he pointed out a spot near where the obelisk now stands as the place where the blacks said Captain Cook landed.

A few years after my visit I built a small brigantine, and called her Seagull. On hearing that gold was discovered in California, we made up a party and sailed from Sydney for San Francisco, December 18, 1849, called at New Zealand (previously visited by Captain Cook). We sailed thence for Otago, arriving at Papeete on February 1, 1850, one of Captain Cook's favorite spots. After a few pleasant days we sailed for and arrived at Kealakekua Bay, Island of Hawaii, on March 8, 1850. The Seagull anchored opposite a great temple or platform built of lava, surrounded by a parapet wall. In the center of the platform is an altar 12 feet in length, on which the priests burned human sacrifice to their gods, of which they had two sets. The home of one set was on the burning mountain overlooking the temple. The other set were gods of the sea; large sharks, said to be fed with babies. A portion of the bay was sacred to them, also the beach between the bay and temple.

On landing we met the Customs officer, and inquired of him where Captain Cook was killed. He pointed across the bay, but said he could get an old man who was present when Captain Cook was killed. An arrangement was made, and on the following day the old man was carried down to our boat and taken across the bay to a large flat rock landing. He directed his carriers, we following, to a place where he pointed out as the spot, a crack or drain about a foot in depth, in the flat lava rock, where Captain Cook tripped and fell, and was killed. They carried his body up a ravine, which was sheltered from view of the bay by a lava ridge, to an altar on which his body was burned, to which our guide took us. He said he minded seeing the fire. Our guide was carried home a near way. This altar was constructed the same as the great one, but much smaller. On the parapet walls are painted the names of several ships of war; also the royal yacht Wanderer, owned by Benjamin Boyd, of Sydney, who was killed on his return at one of the islands.

On our next visit to our guide we asked him the cause of the native hostility to Captain Cook. His reply was the white men landed logs (spars), and plenty things on sacred beach, and lived in houses (tents) on the temple, and spread sails over the altar, which prevented the gods from seeing their own altar. The desecration of the sacred grounds and altar exasperated the priests; they with the people demanded the sacrifice of the white chief. They arranged their trap. Boats were stolen and taken to the opposite side of the bay out of range of the muskets

Weight and Health

THIN, NERVOUS PEOPLE NEED THE TONIC TREATMENT.

This Woman Took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, Gained Thirty Pounds and Has Been Well Ever Since.

How many women—and men too—are suffering from a general decline in health which the ordinary remedies seem unable to check! How many husbands see their wives wasting away, steadily losing health and beauty, and are powerless to help! Consumption and other germ diseases find in these debilitated systems easy prey, for the lowered vitality is unequal to the task of fighting off the infection of these diseases to which most of us are almost daily exposed.

The symptoms indicating the decline which may have results so fatal could scarcely be better described than in the statement of Mrs. William Manley, of 92 Court street, Utica, N. Y. Her case is a typical one. She says: "For six months after the birth of my baby, I suffered from sick, dizzy headaches, which seemed like a rush of blood to my forehead, just back of my eyes. Some days they twitched so I could hardly see and black spots floated before them. The least exertion brought on this sickness. My appetite was poor and I was often sick to my stomach.

"If I tried to work my feet soon became swollen, paining me terribly. I had sinking spells and grew pale and nervous. I was so thin that I weighed only 95 pounds.

"One day when at the drug store to get headache powders I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills instead. I soon noticed that my headache was disappearing and my nerves gradually grew stronger. The pills gave me a hearty appetite and I now weigh over 130 pounds. I believe the pills to be the best tonic and builder a woman can take, as they certainly helped me when my condition was critical and I have never been seriously ill since."

The great value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills lies in the fact that they actually make new blood and thus carries health and strength to every portion of the body. The stomach is toned up, the nerves are strengthened, every organ is stimulated to do its work.

If you are ill and the treatment you are taking does not cure you, write for proof of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done in similar cases.

Your druggist sells them or they will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

of the marines, where a great number of natives were collected, and a message sent that if the chief went for the boats they would give them to him.

This was the old man's story told 71 years after the death of Captain Cook, and 57 years since I heard it told.

The Customs officer was an American, had been several years in the service of King Tamama, and married a nice native woman. He said he had made many inquiries of old natives, who confirmed the old man's story, which he believed to be true, and so do I.
